Partner Relocation

Relocating an employee often involves relocating a family. Over 88% of families today are dual income families. Often, the relocation of one results in the interruption of a partner's career, education, and even personal and educational growth.

Our experience in working with relocated partners results in the positive relocation of families. By working with the relocating individual prior to the move, our services facilitate the move by assisting the partner in assessing their next career steps, helping identify potential career objectives and employers, and finally the blend of combining the new job and new location with mutual family goals.

The Difference: Trusted Professionals Offering Customized Service

"We promoted one of our Field Sales Managers to a Regional Sales Manager position at corporate. However, she needed help with having her whole family make the transition. Her husband needed help with finding work in our city and they also had a child in day care. The personalized attention they received from Lord Consulting Group was outstanding."
